GARNER BOOM GETS CALIFORNIA BACKING

McAdoo Heads Democratic Slate Pledged to Support Texan.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—William G. McAdoo said after a conference today with Speaker Garner, that while the Texan was not seeking the Democratic presidential nomination the boom for him was growing and California would send an instructed delegation for him to Chicago.

The former Democratic secretary of the treasury, who heads the Garner-pledged slate of delegate candidates in the California primary in May, flew here last night on business and called on Mr. Garner at the capitol to pay his respects.

"We didn't discuss politics," Mr. McAdoo said, "but as I was leaving I expressed to him the opinion that while he was not seeking the nomination California would send an instructed delegation for him just the same."

McAdoo said he talked government finances with the speaker in a general way but didn't offer any advice, nor was any sought.

will be returned through Col. Lindbergh's private negotiations, but not until state police have withdrawn.

An opinion that certain angles of the case ought to be considered by the grand jury when it meets April 12 was expressed by the sheriff in whose county the Lindbergh house is situated.

There is a possibility the grand jury will investigate the alleged invasion of the Bourland country by gangsters from Brooklyn.

Detectives worked today on a new ladder clue. In an abandoned farm near the Lindbergh estate a newspaper photographer found pieces of wood similar to that used in the kidnaper's ladder. Several pieces of the wood were stowed away in a light delivery truck.

Shavings were strewn about in a barn where two newly-made saw horses on which a New York City address had been written in pencil.

The New York Daily News quoted State Senator Emerson L. Richards of Atlantic City, majority leader of the senate, as saying "state police are bungling this case thoroughly." He said as soon as it was over, he would demand an investigation of the activities of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police and his entire force.

Power Lines Down
Between Prospect and Radnor the telephone and electric power lines were down, a large number of telephone poles being broken off.

The intensity of the storm had abated somewhat as it reached Waldo. No buildings were destroyed but many were damaged.

A barn on the farm owned by Mrs. Alice Bowers was moved four feet off its foundation and the wind plucked up a brooding house on the Olsen Baker farm and carried it over a fence into a nearby field. Several small buildings on the Baker farm were badly damaged.

Southern Ohio was swept by winds which reached their peak intensity at Hamilton, according to the Associated Press. Five persons were sent to hospitals and scores suffered minor injuries when the wind partially wrecked the West End of the city. Scores were nicked by flying glass, or bruised by debris.

Hail and rain preceded the wind at Hamilton. It blew out the front of a laundry. Walls of St. Peter's church were ripped and the wind, howling through the gaps upturned the altar. So badly was the building damaged that the abandonment is expected.

Light poles were snapped, leaving the district in darkness. Trees sprang up here and there, to increase the danger.

In northwest Ohio, about Toledo, a five inch snowfall blanketed the ground.

Moving eastward along the lake shore, rain, snow and sleet coated the countryside in an icy sheath, making highway travel hazardous and halting air travel.

Storms elsewhere in the country counted casualties, too. Storms of tornado force burst across Indiana, causing one death and considerable property loss. Ohio felt storms of exceptional intensity.

Minister Reviews Jesus' Life on His Last Tuesday

Tuesday of holy week and the happenings on this same day in Jesus' last week on earth, will be the subject of sermons to be delivered in five Marion churches tonight at 7:30.

Rev. H. H. Maxwell of Grace Evangelical church, one of the five ministers who will exchange pulpits tonight, has prepared the following sermonette from the sermon he will deliver tonight at the First Church of the Brethren:

"Tuesday of Passion week has been called the day of controversy. It can be called the day of teaching. This was the last day of Jesus' ministry to the multitudes. Both Jesus and the various groups He dealt with seemed to be making the most of this day. One wonders at the amount of material crowded into one day's ministry. Topics relating to the future and those of immortality had a place as well as those of current interest. It is impossible to treat this entire day in the life of Jesus, in the space allotted, so will you meditate on Mark 12:13-17?"

"The occasion of this portion of scripture is the effort on the part of the Pharisees to ensnare Jesus, and thus to make a formal charge against Him. They presented a very practical question to Him. It was one that had been a matter of torment to their own lives. It had been under compulsion rather

DISEASE AND FAMINE SWEEP OVER ORIENT

Crowding of Refugees Brings New Horrors to War-Stricken China.

Copyright, 1932.

SHANGHAI, March 22.—Disease and famine, two others of the four horsemen of the apocalypse, rode rough-shod over China today in the path of the havoc of war.

As a result of the crowding of millions of refugees during the hostilities at Shanghai, an epidemic of smallpox is now sweeping the Orient, according to the Dr. W. Li-Teh, director of the Chinese military quarantine service.

Dr. John Hope Simpson, British director of the China famine commission, said at the same time famine conditions had again reached such a pass in some parts of the country that the people were eating the bark of trees, the chaff of threshed grain, and weeds, in order to ward off starvation.

Dr. Wu said the smallpox epidemic was the most widespread, and taking the heaviest toll in this vicinity of any in many years. Fifteen persons have died of it in the last two days and the native quarters are crowded with patients.

JAP AIR PATROLS CAUSE OF PROTEST

Nippon Officials Defend Action After Americans, British Complain

By The Associated Press
SHANGHAI, March 22.—A complaint against Japanese air patrols continuing to fly over the area behind the Chinese lines was filed with the League of Nations inquiry commission today by 25 American and British residents of Shanghai.

Japanese army officials declared, however, they had no intention of stopping the patrols until a truce is finally effected.

Such reconnoitering flights are justified by military necessity, a Japanese spokesman said. The planes, he said, were merely keeping an eye on Chinese military operations behind the lines and would harm none of the cities in the rear.

The protest from Sooshow was forwarded by Dr. M. F. Tull of the American Presbyterian mission there. The low flying planes menaced safety and created a state of tension, Dr. Young said.

By The Associated Press

Bettman recommended amendment of the election code so that the names of all presidential electors would appear on the primary ballots, asserting that present laws placed the state in the position of risking "disfranchisement with respect to the election of a President and vice president of the United States."

Vick Plan cuts Costs of Colds!

THE family's "Colds-Tax" can be reduced. It is being reduced this winter—in every community in the country—with the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds." Developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub, the Plan is made possible with Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea for preventing colds, this new Vick formula is companion to VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds. Each aids and supplements the other in the Vick Plan, which follows:

1. BEFORE A COLD STARTS—

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's warning that you are "catching cold"—use Vicks Drops promptly as directed. If you catch cold easily, use a few Vicks Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that you know is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes, wet or cold—after over-smoking—dry, overheated rooms—indoor crowds—etc., etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages.

2. AFTER A COLD STARTS—

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.) This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing."

NEW SHREDDED BISCUIT
EXTRA RICH IN VITAL FOOD ELEMENTS

Laboratory Certifies the Improved Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit

Before the new Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit was introduced, the Kellogg Company submitted it to the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia, which found it so rich in food value that every package could be certified.

This means that mothers can now know definitely that their children are getting a well-balanced food whenever they serve the new Kellogg's biscuits and milk—rich in minerals, vitamins, proteins—nourishing and healthful.

And Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits offer many other features. The biscuits are "pressure-cooked" by a special process that bakes in the delicious flavor. At the same time, it retains all the valuable food elements of the whole wheat.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are much crispier and tastier because they are toasted a tempting brown on both top and bottom—not just one side. They are baked in a more convenient, economical size. Two biscuits just fit the cereal bowl—and you get 15 to the package.

Naturally this tasty new biscuit is welcome for breakfast, lunch, children's suppers—any meal, in fact. Ready to serve with hot or cold milk or cream. Sold by grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Price of Onions Mounts Following Mild Weather

Special to The Star
KENTON, March 22—Prices on onions grown on the Scioto marsh reached $5 a 100 pounds, Saturday, and this week reached a peak of nearly $6. Only 40 cents was offered for the same amount at the close of 1930. Mild weather which resulted in the sprouting of onions in storage is responsible for the rapid rise in onion prices, growers report. Many storehouses in Alger and McGuffey are being emptied. Some growers are holding their stock in the expectation of higher prices. Nearly 25 per cent of the storage onions were destroyed by mild weather. Almost all of the 1931 crop has been shipped. It was learned from responsible onion sellers, and the Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Daily Proverb—Honors best thrive when rather from our acts we them derive than our forefathers.—Shakespeare.

"I'm not as bad as they say I am," Texas Guinan is quoted as saying. "I'm worse!" It doesn't seem possible.

If hoarding attained the volume the experts have been estimating, it's little wonder that income taxes have fallen off. There isn't any profit to be had from idle money.

"U. S. Clerks Cool to Pay Cut Moves."—Headline over a Washington story over the unpopularity of federal clerks over the proposals to slice their pay. They know the politicians too well to fear such a possibility.

What puzzles us is that last week's revolt in the lower house of congress didn't prompt some radically partisan member of the house minority to ask: "What else could be anticipated with Democracy in control?"

Officials of Vernon township in Trumbull county yesterday announced that they had paid the township's entire bonded indebtedness and have money left over. Those fellows are liable to be kidnapped by some city taxing district and held until they divulge how it is done.

It has developed that a change in the bill providing for jury trials in contempt of court matters was changed through the lobbying of agents of the Anti-Saloon league to exempt padlock cases from its operation. Why make fish of one and fowl of another?

Another New York City policeman sentenced to from three and a half to seven years in Sing Sing prison, Saturday, makes five of the vice squad of that city sentenced for framing cases against women. If the Seabury investigation accomplishes nothing else, it is putting behind the bars the human jackals who prey on women.

The Indiana Master Plumbers' association, in session in Muncie, learned last week that the department of commerce is preparing a booklet and articles on plumbing "which were not requested by the plumbing industry and which are, in fact, a duplication of the work which the plumbing industry is doing." Great Scott! Do the plumbers want that great army of job-holders in the department to sit about doing nothing? They should have something on which to put in the time.

The Penalty of Enthusiasm.

The next attack on the entrenched forces of prohibition will be in the beer sector. The generals of both sides are busily mapping out their strategy.

In the house of representatives, anti-prohibitionists are drawing up an amendment to the pending revenue bill which would legalize 2.75 per cent. beer and tax it at the rate of five dollars a barrel.

In the senate, a bill to permit four per cent. beer is to be voted on by the manufacturers committee. A sub-committee of three members, including Senator Bulkley, is reporting favorably on the bill.

Enthusiasm sometimes exacts a penalty for inaccuracy. Anti-prohibitionists are in danger of falling into error by making exaggerated claims concerning the effect of taxing legalized beer. The salvation of the treasury will not come through bouncing beer keys.

The greatest annual production of beer in the United States was 66,000,000 barrels in 1913-14; twenty-one gallons per capita were consumed that year. Since then, the population has increased twenty-five per cent. Restoration of beer might be expected, therefore, to result in an annual production of $2,000,000 barrels.

There are other things to consider, however. For one thing, thirty-one states have prohibition laws now; only fourteen did then. The beer then, furthermore, contained close to four per cent. alcoholic content, on the average. The 2.75 per cent. beer provided for in the house amendment might be popular, and it might not.

Considering legalization of 2.75 per cent. beer from a taxation standpoint, which is the one most commonly used by advocates of a change, there seems to be a deplorable inconsistency in opposing a sales tax because it takes money out of the average man's pocket and whooping it up for a beer tax, which is one of the stiffest and most ruthless sales taxes ever devised. A tax of five dollars a barrel on beer would mean, counting thirty-one gallons to the barrel, a tax of one cent on each half-pint glass—two cents on a pint. Ordinary sales taxes sink away in shame at the mention of such a tax. Yet, some of the most hard-bitten enemies of a general sales tax or even of a modified manufacturers tax unblushingly propose a tax on beer. Such inconsistency does their cause no good.

A Runaway House.

The prospect of a peaceful, well-managed national house of representatives was about as bright as the prospect for a peaceful, well-managed world, at the end of last week Japan showed that there can be peace in the international community only so long as every one wants peace. Insurgents from both parties demonstrated the same thing in the house.

By bolting away from the manufacturers sales tax, the insurgents flipped a figurative wrench into the gears of systematic procedure. They took the arbitrary attitude that the whole scheme of emergency taxation as it had been proposed this far is wrong and dangerous. It is their avowed intention to throw everything away, and put the ways and means committee at work again.

That depressed group, having done the best it could, can do no more. It would be glad to entertain constructive proposals which it has not yet investigated, but no proposals are forthcoming. It is, on the whole, a discouraging fact that the energetic gentlemen who make it a point of honor to bolt away from the crowd so often are moved simply by the impulse to destroy something the crowd holds valuable.

The prospect for any kind of program on taxation fades in direct ratio to the prospect for a controlled house of representatives. Speaker Garner and Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, can bluster and threaten—even as their Republican predecessors used to do to keep the insurgents from breaking too many statutes and windows. The shoe of responsibility feels different, now that it is on the other foot.

Washington now figures that income tax collections for the fiscal year of 1932 will run at least $600,000,000 short of the estimates of a month ago when they were expected to reach $1,700,000,000. At that rate, it looks as though congress better get busy and give the proposed tax rates still another boost.

Before sailing for New York from San Francisco, recently, Miss Juliet Proctor, queen of the Santa Rosa rose festival, had herself sworn in as a deputy prohibition agent in order that she may not be molested for carrying with her a bottle of rare old wine with which to christen the Grace Panama mail liner, Santa Rosa. Here's an idea which should appeal to the "law-abiding citizens" who find traveling between oceans a hardship.

They Said It For Him.

Sam Gilbert Bratton, able New Mexico senator, indulged himself in a bit of unconscious humor in the senate chamber the other afternoon.

Shortly after the opening ceremonies and in the opening passages of an acrimonious debate on war debts, Senator Bratton obtained the floor, having in mind, as he said several hours later, to make "certain remarks which would consume ten minutes' time." However, so generous was he in relinquishing his privilege to Senators Reed, Fletcher, Robinson, Connally, Smoot, Glass and Shipstead that finally there was nothing left for him but a meager last word.

In that last word, however, he said what all the others had been trying to say for the preceding two hours. The issue had been revision of war debts. A report that Andrew Mellon, now ambassador to the Court of St. James, would negotiate for a rearrangement of the debt structure between the United States and Great Britain had set the senate off in a series of oratorical explosions. Senator Bratton poured on water and stopped the conflagration temporarily.

"There will be no reduction, no cancellation," he concluded briefly, after listening to Senator Reed's vigorous denial that Ambassador Mellon would mention war debts and Senator Robinson's no less vigorous promises that any one who dared to think of cancelling debts would be skinned alive by congress. Insult for insult, charge for charge and blow for blow, it was one of the pretestiest tempests in a teapot the senate has had for many a day.

Out in the country, far away from the noise and confusion of the national legislative chambers, the people got quite a bit of fun out of Senator Bratton's unintentionally adroit handling of the situation. Like Tom Sawyer, all he had to do was to sit back and let the others work for him. They cleared the ground and he planted the flag: There will be no reduction, no cancellation.

Sheriff Farley, the deposed sheriff of New York county, New York, was roundly cheered when a judge there cleared him of a charge of fraud on the ground that there was no law prohibiting an official from profiting personally from the income of public funds left in his care, but the fact that Governor Roosevelt removed a prominent figure of Tammany Hall at a time he is seeking the Democratic nomination for the presidency rather goes to show what the governor thinks of the moral phase of Farley's course.

The Greek delegate to the international wine congress, assembled in Paris last week, urges that all wine-making nations boycott all products of the United States until this country permits wine importations and consumption. That particularly delegate must be closely related intellectually to the college professors, pacifists and churchmen who are urging this country to boycott Japan.

The United States supreme court has held invalid the section of the revenue act declaring that all transfers of property without an adequate consideration, made within two years of the death of the donor, are taxable as a part of the donor's estate. The court held that the provision in question could not be sustained as imposing a gift tax, "because the intent of congress to enact the provision as an incident of the death tax and not as a gift tax is unmistakable; and because, if construed as imposing a gift tax, it is in that aspect still so arbitrary and capricious as to cause it to fall within the ban of the due process clause of the fifth amendment." Anyway, here's one curb, at least, on the rapacious tax-caters.

Editorial Opinion.

LEGISLATING RUIN.

The revolt of the house of representatives from its patriotic and responsible leadership threatens the nation with the greatest crisis since the assassination of Lincoln. It is of deadly significance that the members who fought so bravely to wreck the national industry were led by the New York representative, La Guardia, who is alien in mind and spirit from Americanism. That he and his followers should be able to stampede the house of representatives against the reasoned protests of American leaders of both parties, leaders of approved character and seasoned judgment, is a challenge to the nation, and the nation will demand an immediate restoration of common sense and a return to responsible leadership.

If reason does not return to the membership and the preposterous taxes are imposed upon the already overburdened nation they will dry up the sources of revenue as a burning wind dries a harvest.

The destructive folly of the proposed tax measures has been fully and forcefully presented to the house. Chairman Clegg, of the ways and means committee, pointed out that even with the higher rates the income tax will not yield enough revenue to balance the budget. The returns filed on March 15 bear him out. Congressman Rainey warned the house of the real meaning of these measures and of the spirit which proposes them as heading the American people toward communism. Clippel, of Illinois, strove to bring the house back to reason.

"You talk about conservation of wealth," he said, "but we can only put the labor of this country to work through the wealth of the United States. And if you confiscate the source of employment you will cause more unemployment." But the runaway house paid no heed.

Every page of the record discloses the purpose of the house to soak those whom congressmen describe as the rich. At just what point poverty becomes riches is not clear. The house has raised its committee's schedule on rates beginning with incomes of $8,000, from which it might be concluded that an $8,000 income is evidence of great wealth. The idea is that by confiscating a growing share of the earnings of all who receive more than $8,000 a year, the poor will somehow be benefited. The higher income tax is justified as a punitive measure and a social corrective.

Congressmen refuse to face the fact that crushing taxation of those of moderate means can only result in decreased purchasing power, which in turn can only retard business recovery, while punitive taxation of larger accumulations of capital will inevitably drive them into tax exempt and therefore relatively unproductive investments. At a time when the crying need of the country is for purchasing power and for capital investment in industry, both of which would provide jobs for the unemployed, congress proposes to restrict buying and make capital investment as difficult as possible.

Congress should understand that while it can smash every reviving hope of American recovery by no form of taxation, national state or local or all together, can the taxers and radicals extort $14,000,000,000, nor yet $10,000,000,000 a year from the people. They can waste the land like a plague of locusts, they can tax and confiscate by every device financial quackery or radical theory invents, but they can not draw mounting billions from a nation whose powers of production their greed and folly have paralyzed and whose capital resources they have diverted and exhausted.—Chicago Tribune.

Respect Your Kidneys.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Today I want to tell you a few facts about the kidney, facts with which I believe every one should be familiar. We can live without a stomach, or after many yards of the intestine are removed, but if both kidneys are removed death will occur.

Nature provides two kidneys, so that if one kidney becomes diseased the other may take over the necessary work. A diseased kidney can be removed and all will be well, provided the remaining kidney is normal and healthy.

The kidneys serve as filters to catch certain body wastes. Poisons are formed in the system by reason of definite chemical reactions. These poisons get into the blood and are carried to the kidneys, where they are filtered out and excreted in the urine. The blood and body tissues are kept healthy and clean by this action of the kidneys.

When the kidneys are diseased the mechanism is impaired and poisons accumulate within the body. Such a condition may be caused in a variety of ways, but it is most frequently due to an infection. This disaster may be a complication resulting from a simple cold. It may follow tonsillitis, or an infection of the teeth or throat. A boil or abscess on a finger or toe may be sufficient to produce a blood stream infection that will carry germs to the kidneys and produce there an abscess, or similar condition.

Recently I told you about Bright's disease and pointed out that this condition was frequently confused with other less serious diseases of the kidney. Any inflammation of the kidney is called "nephritis." Bright's disease is merely one form of nephritis. After a long illness such as pneumonia, grippe, typhoid fever or rheumatic fever, nephritis may develop. In children, scarlet fever is always serious because of the danger of kidney infection.

Some persons are more susceptible to kidney disorders than others. Often the ailment may be traced to some injury of the kidney received in early childhood. It may be the result of an accident, or of infection, or of congenital weakness of the kidneys. Tuberculosis of the kidney is sometimes found in an adult, who may have had the disease for many years, yet was unaware of the infection.

Many persons are too careless about the food they eat. Please remember that indigestion in diet is a short cut to kidney disease. Eating acid foods, excesses of foods, or of alcohol, nicotine or caffeine—all are injurious to the kidneys. These vital organs are delicate in structure and can not withstand continued injury and abuse.

Every individual should have a urinalysis made every six months. This should be complete and not merely consist of testing for albumin and sugar. The specimen sent for examination should be the total amount collected during twenty-four hours.

Whenever deemed necessary, the function and condition of both kidneys should be checked by special tests and by X-ray examination. Respect your kidneys. They are of the utmost importance to your general health and happiness.

Dinner Stories.

"Don't you think you are trying to rise too rapidly in your political career?" asked the constituent.

"No," replied Senator Sorghum.

"Remember the poet wrote, 'The heights by great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight.'"

"Yes. But that was written long ago, before they had tall buildings with modern elevators."

He—"That young woman I saw you with looks very sad. Is she unhappily married?"

She—"No, unhappily unmarried."

Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick was awakened one morning about 2 o'clock by the persistent ringing of his doorbell. Going to the window he looked out and inquired what was wanted.

"Mr. Fosdick," said the drunk at the door, "I have come to get you to explain the difference between modernism and fundamentalism."

"I don't think I can explain that to you at this late hour and in your present condition. Come back tomorrow when you are sober and we'll talk about it."

"But, Mr. Fosdick," protested the inebriated one, "When I'm sober I don't care a cuss."

"Do you see any excuse for unemployment?"

"None whatever," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "When prosperity is to be recovered, it's time for methods to be devised to keep everybody as busy as possible."

"Oh, it's no fun being engaged to Harry," she said bitterly.

"Why not, dear?"

"Why, when you stir up a little quarrel just to break the monotony, he takes it seriously and keeps you worried for fear you've really lost him."

New Italian Opera.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Rome, March 22.—Ottonio Respighi, the great opera composer, is busy putting the finishing touches to his new opera which is expected to be produced.

Though "Missa Espiritica" has for protagonist the composer whom Antonio France immortalized as Thais, the new opera will not in any way be the kind of woman Thais was. The story begins when she had become converted to the new religion of Christianity which was being preached in Egypt at that time and is set in the way to become St. Mary of Egypt as the new stands in the calendar.

The music which is more Respighian than anything he has yet written and the scenery which is extraordinarily daring. So says Respighi.

According to the legend, St. Mary retired into the desert after her conversion and lived alone for forty-seven years, till St. Zosimus came and gave her his cloak, as she had no clothes, and was covered with her hair. The next Lent he again met her, but the one after that he found her dead and he buried her with the help of a lion, as he had no spade. The opera will be full of incidents from her long life.

The attempt of the Royal Opera company to "modernize" the old opera, La Traviata, has not met with public approval.

The use of the new revolving stage entailed cutting down the spacious scenes which Romans are accustomed to admire into small rooms which they described disgustedly as "Punch and Judy" shows.

Nor did the modern idea of what very early Victorian furnishings and decorations were, or should have been, appeal to the audience which crowded the handsome opera house as if Traviata was having her first night.

The general verdict is "let the opera alone and give them spacious and non-fantastic settings."

Senator Mosconi, Italy's minister of finance, is puzzling his head over a means of attracting back into circulation the hidden savings of his countrymen, which total something over $80,000,000. Part of the money is secreted in Italy, part is hoarded abroad in dollars, Swiss francs and other "hard" currencies. It is a question of how to induce the owners to bring it back and place it at the disposal of the government for industrial purposes. According to a note published by the economic-financial agency, the government would be ready to guarantee that owners could withdraw the money at reasonable notice, but that its use in this country would greatly help on the trade and industries which now suffer from lack of confidence and support.

Denunciation of these people as unpatriotic has failed to make them respond. The Bank of Italy, which is under state control, is expected to take steps to induce the owners to part with it at remunerative rates.

Italy has always been handicapped by the lack of confidence of investors, who prefer putting their money into state securities rather than into business concerns. The fault partly lies with the laws which have hitherto regulated incorporated societies, which have too often proved disastrous for the ordinary investor. The new commercial code aims at protecting the investors by a set of stringent rules for company promoters, and heavy sanctions against boards found guilty of issuing dishonest balance sheets, but the fact remains that the Italian investor still fights shy of such ventures.

But as necessity is the mother of invention there is every prospect of offers being made shortly to the holders of the $80,000,000, so tempting and yet so shy.

Seneca Allen.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

Seneca Allen was one of the pioneers of Ohio, who had wealth once well within his grasp, but let it slip. Born of pioneering ancestors in the state of New York, he came, among the early settlers in the Maumee valley, and established a store at Roche du Pont on the Maumee river, which is now the prosperous little town of Waterville.

But he had learned the science of surveying, and that being more to his liking, he joined with other adventurous spirits in promoting a new town where Toledo now stands. He led in the making of the first survey of that city, and prepared the first plat. It was in 1814 that he established his store at Roche du Pont and it was in 1824 that he engaged in the Toledo enterprise. He acquired the title to 160 acres, which now comprises the very heart of Toledo, paying therefor $450. With the improvement of the land and upon that tract it is easily worth that many millions.

But Allen could not hold it—or at least he did not, and left the new town, going to Monroe, Michigan, where he lived the rest of his days.

In the courthouse at Rochester, New York, there is a curious monument to the father of Seneca Allen. It consists of two worn and antiquated millstones, imbedded in the wall, by the side of which is a metal tablet attesting that these stones represent the first industry that was engaged in at that place. Before the first house in Rochester had been erected, Ebenezer Allen, familiarly known as "Indian" Allen, had operated a grist mill there and these stones constituted the hub of his mill.

His enterprise was the father of Seneca Allen. His enterprise was thus memorialized by the Historical Society of Rochester. Seneca Allen has the credit also of conducting the first school in Toledo.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, March 22.—It is axiomatic that with millions New Yorkers freeze up and friendships are limited to a handful. The richest men in America have no more than a half dozen intimates. Morgan is said to have three. Rockefeller, his son. A number isolate themselves on yachts in foreign waters.

With enormous wealth comes the trail of gladiators and the army of something boys. Even close friends are not immune in the effort to get something for nothing. As a result the very rich must resort to the unpleasant barricade of a glacial aloofness.

Many millionaires want to fraternize, but in unbending they frequently become targets for grandiose gestures, requests for market tips and capital to float this venture and that. One of America's greatest writers is an intimate of a multi-millionaire.

In a duck-blind down south in the pink of a dawn the rich friend broke a long silence with: "Do you know why I like you?" The writer responded facetiously with: "Certainly it's personal charm coupled with many beauty." There was a prolonged and meditative hush.

Then the millionaire explained: "I enjoy being with you because you are the only person who has ever accepted me for myself alone. You are the single individual, since coming into large wealth who never asked anything save a simple companionship."

He told of a purely platonic friendship with a night club hostess years ago. He and his wife used to drop into the hotel where she presided to hear her patter. One day she sent him a check for $10,000 with a note: "Invest this for me." He did, doubled it in ninety days and sent her the total.

She, expecting more, was disappointed and friendship faded. Two maiden aunts turned over $125,000 in the same way. He tripled it in a stock and got them out. But the stock shot up 200 points after that and the dear old ladies never spoke to him again.

A yep wagon Barker passing the cozy white cottage of Edgar Allan Poe in Fox park exclaims with a magnificent flourish: "That's where Mr. Poe wrote 'The Robin.'"

I don't know how department store escalators affect others, but just a tiny ride and I can't regain equilibrium for several minutes. It recalls a cheerful cabin steward on an English boat. As I lay in a wan pallor and trying to cling to a heaving bunk, one popped in and chirped brightly: "A bit tipsy, sir?" That's how I feel after an escalator ride—a bit tipsy.

The most leisurely cafe in town to my notion is the LaFayette, brooding so picturesquely on the fringe of Washington square. After afternoon and dinner, patrons lounge playing cubito, dominoes and chess. Outside at dusk remains an almost forgotten aura of the days of oiled ringleads, curtises and stock cobs.

A few blocks northward was a glittering shop, marking another adventure into mechanical high speed living—a five-cent electric shoe shop. A spic and span attendant directing customers to chairs seemed the sole employee. Such experiments are rather cloying to lonely city dwellers seeking human contact. Most of us have shoe shines in public for conversation with the shiner, a sort of fusion of commerce and chatter. All such places—automats, self this and self that—somehow recall the gloomy farewell of the tragic child suicide in "Jude, the Obscure." "Done because there are too many of us."

I prefer the high boothback chair near the door in the rush of Saturday night at the barbershop back home. There Doc Black rather obscured his professional perfection with jovial sallies. After flicking a quick bolero with his shoe rag he whisked an ack-ta, ack-ta allegro with a long clothes broom and archly inquired: "Goin' out among 'em, Cap'n?" And generally we were!

The perplexities of mass population proved a further embarrassment in the confusing glow of Times square. In trying gracefully to sidestep two brightly-robed and onrushing flappers I began to jockey back and forth skidshy. Finally one of them snipped: "Grandpa wants to play!"—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Already he feels he has put two of them in their place—given them a sound spanking for their "freshness" which, he expects, they are not likely to forget.

"She didn't go home, madam. She went to Mr. David's. I gave the address to the driver." Mrs. Frew's astonishment at that was more than she could control. Her voice took a higher note. "But, POUND, you are mistaken! KITTY—Mrs. Garfield never has met David!"

Poor POUND, he had lived to 62 in service, obedient to the slightest command. Mrs. Frew's statement commanded. He obeyed.

"She knows him, madam. She met him here. Mr. David comes sometimes, to have dinner with his father." He waited, his kindly wrinkled face marked with distress. He was betraying Mr. David!

Mrs. Frew appeared to be weighing what he had said. Except that her mouth was drawn into a thin hard line she gave no sign of any emotion. After a moment she walked to a desk in the corner of her room and took from it a check-book. She filled in one of the blank sheets, unhesitatingly, blotting it carefully.

"This covers your wages for the rest of the month, POUND. You may go this morning. And under the circumstances, into which I do not think we need go, you can expect no references from me, of course."

For a moment POUND's old body stiffened under a wave of anger. He opened his lips to speak, then closed them. He bowed his head, took the piece of paper and withdrew, shutting the door carefully, softly behind him.

Mrs. Frew stood quite still looking fixedly at the closed door. Her brain was working with a cold, hard precision that kept in check her mounting triumph.

Cora came back to finish the work POUND had interrupted.

When Mrs. Frew was dressed she told Cora to summon Mr. Gar.

"He slept in the blue room last night, Madam. I didn't know—I thought Miss Carol had brought home a guest and I knocked—"

"Wait, Cora, before you call Mr. Gar. Get the Wickster placement agency on the telephone. I have dismissed POUND."

Gar was awake, heavy-eyed, when Cora delivered her message through an inch of open door. He was trying to collect just why he was here, in the blue room. His head ached—probably the stuff Burckett had gotten for them last night had been rotten. There was something he'd planned to do first thing this morning. O, yes, it had been sore last night. He had to make up with her. Well, he'd been sore, too, the way she'd jumped on him. That was why he'd slept down here! But she must have worried, maybe thought something had happened to him—

He'd run upstairs before he went in to see his mother. He moved to get out of bed and then dropped back on his pillow. "God, what a head! Guess I was tight last night. Glad Kit wasn't there—"

Then he remembered, with sudden clarity, just how KITTY had looked. She'd said something about going away. A vague uneasiness took hold of him. He got up hastily and looked about for a robe of some sort; he must find KITTY at once. And, there being no robe, he wrapped a blue silk coverlet around his underclothes, in which he had slept, and went, two steps at a time up the stairs to his room.

Three minutes later he burst into his mother's room, the blue coverlet still dragging at his heels, his face white, his eyes dark with terror.

She had expected he would come like this. She met him halfway from the door, and put steadying hands on his shoulders. "I know, dear boy. Her voice was deep with compassion, tenderness.

"She said she was going—but I didn't think she meant it. She was terribly mad, mother! I guess I've been rotten. I guess maybe I acted rotten last night—I can't remember—"

"Calm yourself, Gar. KITTY has gone home. POUND put her in a taxi."

"Last night? But she didn't have any money!"

"She must have had some money, Gar, that you did not know she had."

Gar remembered the money with which KITTY had bought her dress—she hadn't let him know she had that. Perhaps she had had more. Maybe she had gone home. He dimly remembered her saying something about going home—

"Till wire to Bridgewater. I'll take the night train."

"Wait, son," Mrs. Frew sat down in a chair and motioned to him to draw one close to her. "You must not rush into anything. You must think of the future. Haven't KITTY done a rather childish, undignified thing, going off like this? I cannot believe that she was justified. In any pique, you are devoted to her. We have done everything we could to make her happy here—"

"You've been wonderful, mother."

"If you rush after her now, Gar, it is certain that she will do it again. Wait and let KITTY see for herself how silly she is acting. In a few days you'll have a letter from her begging you to forgive her for the distress she has caused you. Then you can go to Bridgewater."

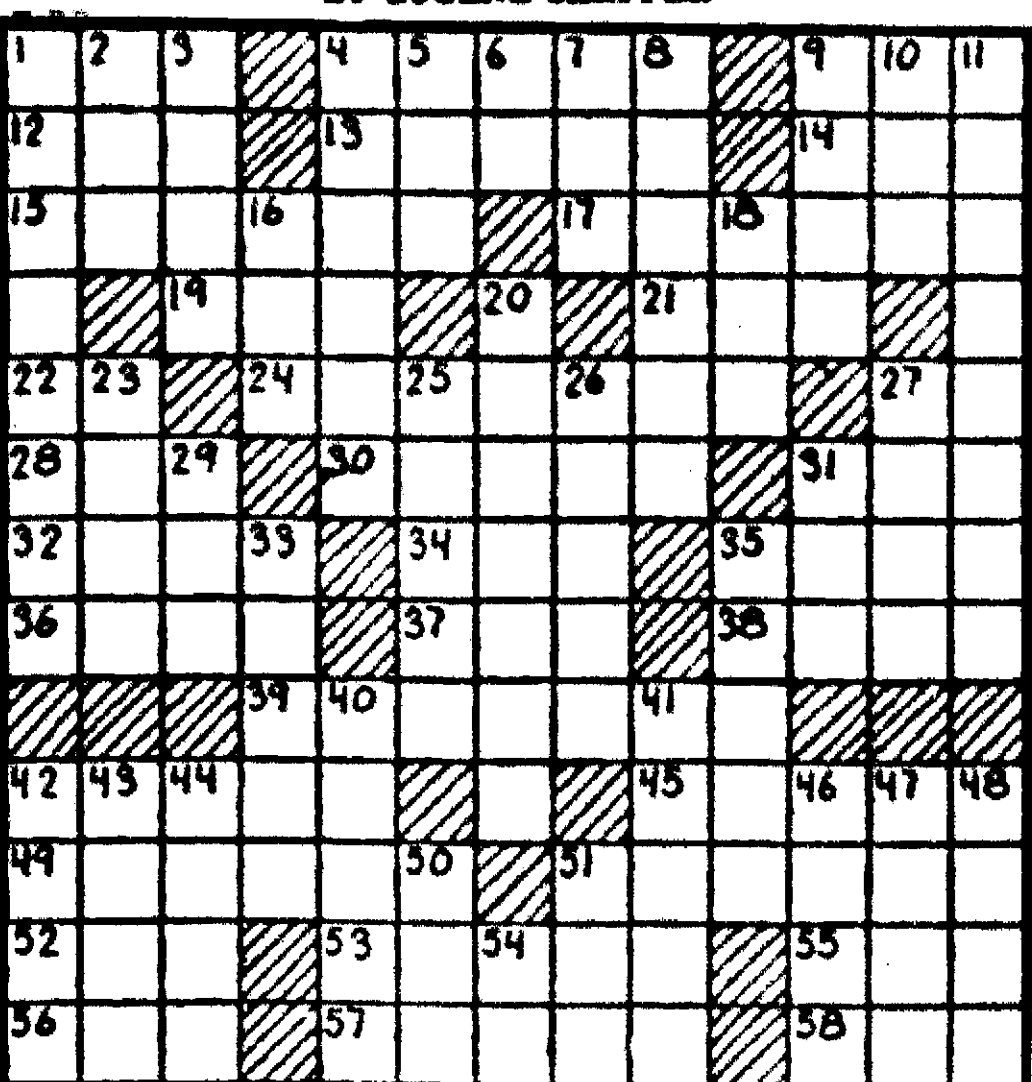

Gar's face had brightened. He caught his mother's hands and squeezed them boyishly. "You're the greatest mother a fellow ever had. The way you see things out."

She smiled her gratitude for his tribute. She left her hands in his.

"I hold my motherhood as my most sacred responsibility. I must always be ready to help you, Gar, to think things out. You must always know that. I never have Madge and Lillian Dineen Plans For the Dinner Dance.

DREW the car to the side of the road as Lillian finished cutting the "psychology" treatment she had given her young daughter. "What's the matter, a fire?" she asked, but I shook my head, laughing, as I turned off my ignition and clapped her on the shoulder. "I simply wish to salute Machiavelli in a modern, feminine incarnation," I said. "That I told you so business about Ronald! I can not think of anything more diabolically clever. I haven't had a chance to see Ronald and Marion in the same room yet, but Mary whispered to me that she thought Marion was nearly at the exploding point, and that she was going to plan something extra devilish for the 'home stretch,' as she expressed it."

"It's Mary who is diabolically clever," Lillian said, in tones that held admiration, but tinged with disapproval. "Sometimes I wonder which is predominant—the adjective or the adverb."

I made no answer for I knew there was no need of defending Mary to her. She was grateful for the older girl's scheme, but her eternal jealousy, of which she possessed more than her share, made her dislike the spectacle of Ronald deserting her child for another girl, even in an acted comedy.

Thirty to Dinner

"But she's done a good job," Lillian's honesty was behind the tribute. "I only hope it lasts."

"It will!" The words were heavier than my heart, as I turned on my ignition switch again and started the car down the road.

"You're the most heartening person in the world!" She put her hand upon my arm earnestly, but I was silent for a little space, then my eyes fixed upon the autumn fields past which we were speeding.

"I don't want to talk about it any more, just as if it were all on the lap of the gods now, anyway. Mary and I have done all we can. If we've failed—"

"Don't say 'if,' I admonished sharply.

"All right," she answered meekly; "but tell me more about what you're planning. A dinner dance, you said. How many?"

"About thirty, I imagine," I said for I had been studying the question and had my answer ready.

Plans for the Party

"Where are you going to serve dinner—in the dining room? Thirty will be a tight fit there, won't it?"

"No, I hadn't planned it there," I said. "The living room is so big that if we move all the furniture out and wax the floors we can put small tables sufficient for thirty around the walls, leaving a space in the center for dancing."

"Did you think of that all by yourself?" she asked, with a little laugh.

"No," I returned. "I didn't. Dicky really was responsible for the idea."

"I thought I recognized his hand," she said. "Of course it has been done before in private houses, but to stage it here in this old farmhouse—that's a stunt! I hope the Dicky-bird is really interested. He'll give you some nifty ideas in decoration, if his heart is in it."

"He's planning some of them already," I said. "I think he's only here, to finish his plans," waiting for you and Harry to get "Well, have an executive session of four this very night," she said, and a ching little feeling around my heart slipped away and was succeeded by a warm glow, as understanding as the chill had been.

Always in the association of the Underwoods with us, I have realized that Dicky and Lillian, both artists and Harry, expert in theatrical staging, shared knowledge and ability from which I was shut out by limitations of my capacity and training. I never let the knowledge spoil my enjoyment of their work, but I was inordinately glad to have Lillian include me in the "executive session."

Checking Them Off

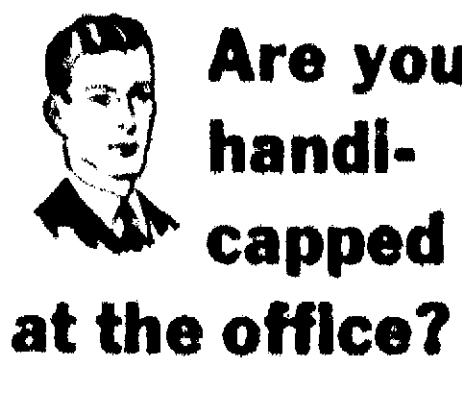

Dicky, while meaning to be considerate, had shown only too plainly that he didn't think my opinion on decorations for the dinner dance worth much consideration, and I had been foolishly wounded by the knowledge. But Lillian, as always, had heartened me.

"Who are your crowd?" Lillian asked next. "Take the old folks first. They won't be bothered with an ordinary dinner, but I'll bet your mother-in-law and your father will want a choice table for this."

"They're going to have it," I returned, laughing.

Then Lillian said, checking upon her fingers: "The Underwoods, four; the Underwoods six; Katharine seven; well, make her come down. Hugh and Lee Chow, nine—I hope he has a mandarin robe concealed somewhere in his luggage—Paul and Mrs. Arlen, eleven; Charles Owen, twelve; the Hixtons, fourteen. Half your dinner, nearly, is given up, the rest center that?"

Are you hand-capped at the office?

To put in a full day's work, you need a full man's strength. A man, half sick from constipation, has less chance to succeed in today's keen competition.

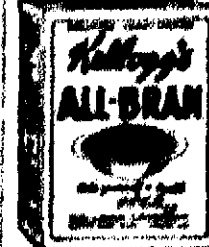

This insidious condition often causes headaches, loss of energy, sleeplessness. It takes the edge from your working hours.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Pirates Loom as Doubtful Contenders for National Flag

STRENGTH OF CLUB IS PUZZLE; MOST OF PLAYERS VETERANS

Majority of Rookies Have Yet To Display Any Startling Form.

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
By The Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, once one of "the teams" to beat for the National flag pennant but more recently fallen by the wayside, will take the field this season as doubtful contenders.

At third base and in center field, Pittsburgh is fortified. Harold "Pie" Traynor still is rated the best third sacker in baseball. Lloyd Waner will do until another fly chaser comes along.

But around these two stars is built a club that is a pre-season puzzle.

George Gibson is frankly concerned with the keystone combination of his infield unit. Tommy Thevenow, shortstop, is a crack fielder, but weak at the plate.

Two youngsters are battling for second base, with Tony Plet holding the edge over Howard Grosskloss. Gus Bruh, with plenty of experience, has first base sewed up.

Paul Waner, elder brother of Lloyd, will patrol right field as usual.

The left field berth is open with Adam Comorosky, Forest Jensen, Gus Dugas, and Dave Barbee in the running.

Gibson said he is satisfied with his catching staff.

It includes Hot Finney, Earl Grace, holdovers, and Bill Brenzel, rookie purchased from the San Francisco Missions.

Pittsburgh's pitching staff is manned by veterans. Ray Kremer, Larry French, Ervino Brane, Swetonic, Glenn Spencer, Charlie Wood and Henry Meine are holdovers. Harris Niggeling, Swift and Blvin are youngsters who have shown promise.

AMERICA DIVIDES SINGLES MATCHES

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, March 22.—With no better than an even break in the first two singles matches of the international team competition with France, the United States hoped to gain a perhaps decisive edge tonight by winning the doubles.

Representing America, in the doubles will be the national indoor champions, George Lott and John Van Ryn. France will call upon Jean Borotra and Christian Boususs.

Boususs had bowed to the New York American indoor champion, Gregory Mangin of Newark 7-9, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, in the opening engagement, but Borotra came through with a brilliant victory over Frank Shields, 6-8, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Parker Bryant, captain of the Oglethorpe football squad last season, plans to play professional football next fall.

First Team Enters
If being the first team to officially enter the race for the city recreation baseball championship for 1932 is a good luck omen the city softball commission may as well order a pennant for St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday school. Plunking down the $15 entry fee yesterday at noon, the Lutherans were the first team to ask a berth in one of the leagues.

The team played last season in the No. 2 Sunday school circuit and will again compete in that loop this season.

Ray Henderson will captain the Lutheran entry this year. Paul Weber will pilot the club, succeeding Bill Fetter, Sr. The Lutherans put up a valiant fight for the flag last season and are out to take up right where they left off last season. In Don Lindsey the club has one of the best twirlers in the city, only a youngster as far as baseball experience goes but among the best when it comes to shooting them through the alley. Several of the other members of the team will bear comparison with the city's elite.

Clubs Change Pilots
From all indications there are a lot of ball teams in the city who will play under the direction of different pilots this coming season.

Several teams have already decided they can do better with a new leader and several others are dickering for new generals.

The St. Paul Lutheran shift has already been noted. The Gasco club of the commercial league will play under the guidance of Ray Anthony instead of C. F. Bronson. Trinity Baptist has named Stewart Jones pilot succeeding Bill Martin.

Serv-U-Wel stores of the Commercial league have selected Ray Smallwood as the commander-in-chief, in place of Bert Curtis. There are only a few of the changes. A majority of the teams have not organized for the season. Others will retain the same pilots. John Clark will again lead Epworth No. 1 and Bill Harruff will be at the head of Calvary Evangelical.

Those two teams couldn't play without Harruff and Clark to do the basing.

Second Entry in!
Hardly had the typewriter cooled off from having recorded the first official entry in recreation baseball here than Elmer Shaw, secretary of the city commission, telephoned the news that a second team had asked permission to enter a team. The second is St. Paul's Episcopal church, a newcomer to Sunday school softball here.

St. Paul would like a berth in the second church league. The Episcopalians will play under the direction of Walter Hane as manager and Boyd Titworth as captain.

Classy Quintets To Compete in Tourney Here

With nine teams already in and two more days before the entry deadline is reached, indications point to a large field of teams in the second annual North Central Ohio independent basketball tournament which will get under way in The Star auditorium Thursday night. The tourney will be held on Thursday night, Friday afternoon and night and all day Saturday.

A total of 29 teams took part in the tourney last season. It is considered unlikely that as great a total will compete this season but the teams as a whole will be stronger.

Several of the teams which played in 1931 were out of their class but every team that has entered the meet so far this season is fully capable of putting up a battle against first class opposition.

Nine teams have definitely entered the 1932 classic and several more have indicated an intention of getting in before the deadline Wednesday at 8 p. m. Teams entered up to now are Plain City, Cuba, Galena Independents, Wilson A. C. of Columbus, Community Laundry of Lima, Akron DeWitt Hall Motors, Refitts Bulldogs of Bucyrus, Reliable Coal Company of Columbus, Green Camp Baptists of Green Camp and Rexall Drugs of Marion. The Rexall Drug team is in reality the Shovel Y-Indus club playing under different sponsorship than in previous games this season.

Of the teams entered now the Reliable Coals of Akron, DeWitt Hall Motors and Rexall Drugs appear among the strongest of the tournament. The Reliable Coals include in their lineup such stars as Eddie Plunk, Howard Stannier, Bus Woodward, Elmer Becker, Jimmy Tapp and Howard Eigen.

See, some of the classiest basketball players in Columbus. The Rexall Drug lineup will include Walter Lockwood, Vic Gillis, Bill Keller, Bill Roush, Eddie Sawyer, Jack Ling, Carol Carls, John Pickard, Fred Vestal, Chuck Osterholt and Bud Cram. The personnel of the Akron quintet is not known but the team is reputedly one of the best in the Rubber city.

Drawings for the tournament will be made Wednesday night, immediately following the close of the entry list at 8 p. m.

PIN SMASHERS OUT TO REPEAT VICTORY
Philadelphia Irishmen Buck Tradition in A. B. C. Meet Today.

By The Associated Press
DETROIT, March 22.—A pair of Philadelphia Irishmen who celebrated St. Patrick's day at Buffalo last year by rolling the 1,316 which won the American Bowling congress doubles championship, are attempting to shatter a tenpin tradition today.

Charley Reilly and Eddie Rafferty, the Philadelphia pair, expect to change the pin averages in defending their title. Only once has a title been successfully defended in the history of the tournament. If they are in form, they should top the 1,278 with which H. Reitmeyer and H. Cook of Irvington, N. J., are holding this year's doubles lead.

Thirty-two out-of-town teams, scheduled last night, failed to produce any real totals. Recreation Five of Terre Haute, Ind., topped both squads with a 2,802 score, far out of the money.

Elvy Knox of Philadelphia, one of two men to roll perfect scores in national tournament competition, shot only a 528. He was completely off form.

MACK DOWNS MORAN IN FEATURE BATTLE OF WRESTLING CARD

Dick Griffin, Former Marion Boy, Flopped in Semi-Final Bout.

The rain and electrical storm was good medicine for Paddy Mack, the Nebraska youngster who has won his way into the hearts of Marion fans, and today he holds a victory over Fred Moran of Boston.

In one of the best bouts of the current season, Mack was given the third and deciding fall of their engagement at the Shovel gym last night when Moran, after repeated warnings from the referee, continued to use the strange hold, the Bostonian was disqualified after two minutes of wrestling.

Moran was out to win and Mack was fighting equally as hard for the honors of the match. With this existing, only one thing could happen; it was a great battle.

Moran won the first fall in 31 minutes using three ring-shaking croch slams to batter Mack into submission. It looked like Mack was due to take the count by the same route when he shook Moran off balance, causing him to fall to the mat with his shoulders down. The fall lasted 10 minutes. Moran was then disqualified in the third fall.

Dick Griffin, Marion boy who is now wrestling out of Columbus, got a tough break when he drew Frankie French for the semi-final match. French, a good man in any promoter's show, outweighed Griffin around 25 pounds. Although he tried hard enough, the extra weight was too much for the local boy to handle.

French won in straight falls, taking the first in 20 minutes with an airplane swing and slam and the second in 15 minutes with a body slam.

In the preliminary Wood Bell of Delaware pinned Sweets Frazier of Marion in three minutes with a scissors and an arm bar.

Ray Murphy, former University of St. Louis star, may be the next backfield coach at Furman university, Greenville, S. C.

CINCINNATI INFELDERS "GOING UP"

This trio of Cincinnati Red infielders is showing a lot of pep in their training camp at Tampa, Fla. Left to right: Andy High, Leo Durocher and George Grantham.

They'll need a lot of pep if the club is to get out of the last place position it occupied last season in the National league.

CHRISTIANS TO PLAY GREEN CAMP QUINTE FOR TOURNEY CROWN

Three Games Slated Tonight at Y as Tournament Ends.

The seventh annual Y-Court basketball tournament will be brought to a conclusion tonight on the Y court with a trio of court arguments up for decision. The first game will get under way at 7:15 p. m. with the others following at 45 minute intervals.

The first game tonight will be two class C teams, the Casio Tor club and Edison Junior High struggling for the championship of the division.

The second game will see Wadsworth and the Spartan A. C. the latter a Marion team, battling it out for class B honors.

The class A encounter between Central Christians and Green Camp Baptists will be the final game and will be the feature conflict of the three-way bill. Central Christians have already won the local tournament and are champions of the city Sunday school league. A victory tonight will give them three championships for the season, a record not equaled here in a long time.

Green Camp is expected to provide plenty of opposition for the Christians. The Baptist five has been played good ball and recently missed the state Baptist championship by only a small margin, losing the championship game by a one point margin.

Gen. Drumm Urges Return to Ideals of Washington

Commanding Officer of Fifth Corps Area Speaks Here at Meeting of 40 Et & Voltaire; Points to Two Extremes in Preparedness Thought.

"It is well for us to turn our minds this year to the apostle of national defense in our country, George Washington," Major General Hugh A. Drumm, commanding officer of the Fifth corps area, U. S. army, said in his short talk to members and guests of the Marion 40 Et & Voltaire following the anniversary dinner last night at Hotel Marion.

Major General Drumm reiterated Washington's plea that the United States keep out of permanent alliances, saying: "Nationalism must be first and with it we could be a mainstay in the world. At all times we should bear in mind that there should be no permanent alliances."

Neglect Only One "Why have we neglected the doctrines relating to preparedness in this country and lived up to all the others," he asked. "We have jumped to the defense of our country whenever there has been an emergency and after peace has come have gone back to the defenselessness of before."

"We have a group of pacifists who believe we should do as China did some 40 or 50 years ago—live as a disarmed country and look where she is now. Another group would have every person armed. Between these two extremes are those who believe in what Washington said, but they are in a quandary until the time of emergency and it is difficult to talk preparedness in times of peace."

"In this year, devoted to Washington, it is desirable that we turn to his principles and thoughts," he said in his closing remarks.

Major General Drumm is commanding officer of the Fifth corps area.
